TREATED HYBRID SEED CORN

SCOTTS Hybrid Corn has been graded for width, length and thickness and will plant easily and accurately in any make of planter. Ohio Certified and Experimental Hybrids not listed are available upon inquiry.

The round kernels are graded uniformly and will yield just as well as the flats but special plates are usually required for accurate planting. These plates are available for most standard planters. All corn is treated for protection against disease.

Scott Farm Seed Company

Mechanicsburg, Ohio

Dear Scott Friend:

Again we are going to pass along a few comments received from customers this past season. We believe they represent the experiences many others have had in using Scotts Farm Seeds. From West Virginia: "I am again sending you my order for farm seeds as I have been doing for the past 28 years or ever since I have been farming for myself which is pretty good evidence of how well pleased I am with your seeds and the dealings with your company." From Ohio: "I have always been well satisfied with seed purchased from you. Am in a position where I can recommend your seed and service which I do quite often," and from Pennsylvania: "Would say that your seeds were more than satisfactory. The only trouble is that I didn't know about them early enough in life. Your Meadow Mixtures gave me the finest meadows around here. Oats and corn were O.K. too. I'm a booster for Scotts."

SEED CORN - SOYBEANS

There is plenty of time for delivery on seed corn and soybeans. As you will notice we have sold out of a few of the hybrids but most of the others are in good enough supply to furnish the hybrid you prefer. There is no additional charge for less than bushel orders. Select a hybrid that is early enough to produce sound corn. This is more important than record yields of wet, poor quality corn.

Monroe is the earliest soybean variety recommended in Ohio. A week to 10 days earlier than Hawkeye, a good yielder and suited for late planting or where early maturity is needed. Hawkeyes are five to six days earlier than Lincolns, stiffer stalked, usually yield about as well and are better suited where wheat is to follow. Lincoln is a high yielding full season variety widely adapted and used where seeding wheat after beans is not a problem. The black soybeans are more leafy and finer stemmed so are more suitable for hay production.

EMERGENCY HAY AND PASTURE

Sudan grass, soybeans and millet are most widely used. Sudans are seeded at about 20 pounds, millet at 30 to 40 pounds and soybeans at 2½ bushels per acre. Sudan and millet should be seeded rather shallow and fertilized for satisfactory stands and vigorous growth.

COVER CROPS

Annual and perennial ryegrass, crimson clover, vetch, yellow sweet clover and southern alfalfa may be seeded alone or in mixtures. Seeded alone the recommended rates per acre are: Ryegrass 20 pounds, crimson clover 15 pounds, vetch 25-30 pounds and sweet clover or alfalfa 15 pounds. In a mixture each is used at about half the normal rate.

WEED KILLERS

Special prices have been made on Scotts 4-X dust or powder form. It is convenient to use on small areas, spot treatments or scattered weed areas and has proven as effective and for some weeds more effective than the sprays.
